Library Display "Reading Takes you Places"

Once a month the library cataloger, Heather LaGoy does displays that focus on certain books. This month, "Spring into a Good Book", is our feature display. In addition to new books on the display, there is also an interactive board, titled, "Put a poem in your pocket" celebrating poetry month. Stop by the library and check it out!

Book Club Meeting:

April 25th, 2019 at Noon in the library Conference room # 1

Book club is open for anyone to join, drop by and see us at our next meeting!

Featured Research Database: JSTOR

A multidisciplinary full text scholarly journal archive that offers back issues of journals, some as far back as the 1800s. As JSTOR's main focus is archiving scholarly journals, you generally will not find the most current issues of journals here but you will find articles from older issues of journals that may not be available in other databases. The library currently subscribes to the following archival collections: Arts & Sciences I, V, VII.

How does the book compare to the movie? You decide..

Have you ever read a book and thought, "Boy that would make an excellent movie" then the movie comes out ,and you think, "What were they thinking?" Or better yet, you preferred the movie over the book. Well in this section I would like to suggest a book that has a correlating movie. Read and watch them both and then you decide what you think. It could be fun and relaxing!
